The Chronicle and Directory for 1871: THIS Work, bow in the NINTH year of its existence, wilkbe published as early as practicable after the close of the current year. It will be compiled and printed at the Daily Prose Office, as usual, from the best and most anthentic sources, and no pains will be spared to make the work complete in all respects. In addition to the usual varied and voluminous information, the value of the "Chronicle and Directory for 1871" will be further augmented by the addition of a Chromo-lithograph plate of the NEW CODE OF SIG-NALS in use at the Peak; also of the various HOUSE FLAGS; & MAP OF HONGKONG; a MAP OF JAPAN; and a CHART OF THE COAST; besides other local information and statistics corrected to date of publication, tending to make this work the rade mecum for all Public, Mercantile and General Offices.

The Publisher requests that those persons who have not yet returned the printed forms which have been sent to them to fill up, will be good enough to do so without delay. Any persons who have recently arrived, and to whom printed forms have not been sent, are respectfully requested to forward their names and addresses as early as possible for insertion.

The roar set up at this aroused enemy, and seemingly acreaming at the top of his voice—for he could not be heard in the middle of the hall—added his quota to the Murray & Lanman's; and buyers should always noise, and again renewed the derisive yell that | be particular to usk for the Florida Water prewas beginning to die off. The staidest there pared by LANMAN & KEMP, New York, could not but shake with laughter, and roll from side to side with the tears in their eyes. Waistoost strings cracked audibly, and the divorces between waistcoat buttons and their shanks must have since created a demand for those articles unequalled in the experience of the Chamber of Commerce. Panting for breath, they saw and beard their entertainer again pleading for quiet. He assured them on his honour, if they only let him get through this, he wouldn't come on the stage again. Another peal of merriment, more quiet, and a fresh commencement in the most seductive tones A lover pleading to his mistress could not be more suave than was this dramatic aspirant to his tormentors. This time he got as far as the doctor's arrival at the door of the sick man's house, and the description upon the methods of knocking would have passed undoticed had he not, to emphasize his words, tapped the whip upon the table, perkily. The recollection of the provious table rapping was too much, and Momus set the laughter on again. Mr. Dranarb jumped about, nummelled and heat the table in perfect frenzy, screamed that " he thought he was addressing an assemblage of gentlemen; but found they were all low animals "-which added fuel to the flame, -and after stalking indignantly around the stage, rushed off.

But, like Napoleon, he knew no such word as Fail, and before eyes were dried and breath restored, the appearance of a functionary on the stage, turning down the lamps, heralded that there was something coming not on the programme. Mr. Dranarb was announced to topear again-hot to give a jig or song as imperatively demanded, but another recitation-The Monk. He soon entered again and excited, n a hurry having forgotten something, which he presently came in with in his hand-whether a young tree, or a bow, or caduceus, or a stuff, was almost impossible to see in the factitious twilight. His costume was certainly neither picturesque nor characteristic, though decidedly novel. A red silk petticoat tied round his breast and skirting to the knee, a pair of top boots, a blue tippet falling to the elbows, his barristor's wig, white shirt-sleeves and kid gloves, composed his attire. The Monk succeeded better than the Apothecary, f bearers were tired of laughing, and had pay on the speaker, who now adopted as his style of delivery a low monotonous drawl, with an extra semibreve on the last syllable. Nature often furnishes an echo to her most beautiful nooks; the ides on supplementing the attractions of the Theatre by one was too good to be left untried, and presently the last word of each line was cehood mournfully in unison, with prodigious effect. What the monk said, and what he did with a pair of scales that he used to weigh counsellors in passed comprehension. All any one knew was that it came to an unexpected end, and the echo falled upon Dranarb dropping the mask of civility, and shouting hurriedly and waspishly-"There, it's over.
